An appendix to the rules, in the form of questions and answers, is again provided, as this method has been found most expedient in clarifying doubtful points. The complete rules section is bound in the de-

Dopsters making an attempt to select winners of grid battles this week will find it quite difficult in predicting victors in several of the contests, some of which are among the most important of the season while at least one will have much bearing on the awarding of the mythical title of national champion here tonight, are of vital import

Ohio State plays its second Big Ten game Saturday, clashing with the University of Michigan. The Scarlet and Gray showed a powerful offensive against Northwestern last week but was poor on defense, especially against the Northwestern aerial attack. A victory for State against Michigan will rate the team high despite last Saturday's setback but the dope figures the Wolerines to win as a result of their 14-13 victory over the 1929 conference Purdue champs.

Carnegie Tech is favored to win over Notre Dame, a daring gesture at grid predictions but then the Tartans have their best team since Lloyd Yoder won all-American honors and with Howard Harpster trimmed the Irish in 1926. If Notre Dame wins it will be proof that it has the best team since the day of Don Miller, Harry Stuhldresher and other members of Rockne's

'four horsemen" combination. Purdue and Iowa clash with the former picked as the winner while Tennessee will trim Alabama, Bay lor will give Southern Methodists a stiff battle but the latter will win. Boston U. may beat Middlebury.

Bucknell, though not strong, will trim St. Thomas and Florida will win in its invasion of Chicago. Dartmouth is picked to trim Columbia and Miami will mar Denison's homecoming celebration with a victory at Granville. North Caroline is expected to lose to Georgia and Georgia Tech will beat Alabama Poly. Mount Union will deliver against Oberlin. West Liberty tied Ohio U. las week and therefore appears strong-er than Muskingum. Minnesota, in a Big Ten game, is heavy favorite over Indiana. Colgate and Michigan State clash in an important inersectional battle with the Easterners favored. Lafayette, weaker than usual, is the under-dog against Penn State.

Salem should defeat New Philly tonight by four or five touchdowns Warren will win by a decisive mar-gin over Girard and New Castle is favored over Toledo Woodward. Tomorrow's scholastic dope is: Liverpool to beat Youngstown Alliance trims Akron North Portsmouth will beat South, Chaney to beat Memorial. Rayen will win over Sharon and Struthers will defeat Boardman. Palestine will defeat Lisbon.

The arrows tell the story. Cold air is heavy. It falls from the ICE, cooling foods in the refrigerator by absorbing heat from them. As it warms slightly, it expands and grows lighter. It rises, cooling foods in its ascent. At the top of the refrigerator the ICE draws the warmer air to it to be washed and chilled again for another cooling cycle.

As it cools food, the air absorbs odors from them, which it deposits on the ICE where they are dissolved and washed down the drain.

A well-designed, welllced refrigerator, with foods placed as in Illustration, is always fresh and sweet. ICE works automatically -constantly cooling and cleansing. Depend on ICE In all weathers.
